Man to stand trial for third time in Lawrence rape case

by Lilly Adkins
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

LOUISA — Another retrial is scheduled in February for a Lawrence County man charged with rape and other charges.

James Russell Lemaster, whose 2009 conviction on the charges was overturned by the Kentucky Supreme Court, is slated to face a third trial Feb. 4 in Lawrence Circuit Court.

Lemaster, 52, who is charged with rape, sodomy, kidnapping, unlawful imprisonment and wanton endangerment offenses, was originally tried and convicted in 2009 and sentenced to 70 years in prison. But in 2011, the Kentucky Supreme Court overturned the conviction and ordered a new trial. The new trial, held in January 2012, ended with a hung jury.

Lemaster is accused of forcing a Lawrence County woman and her daughter into a car at gunpoint and driving them to a strip mine, where he allegedly raped and sodomized the woman.

The victim had obtained a restraining order against Lemaster in 2002.

During the first trial, the victim testified that she and her 15-year-old daughter were returning home from her sister's house and that he came up behind them as they went to unlock the door.

"He had a gun to my daughter's head," the victim testified. "She started to scream and he said if I didn't get her to stop, he will kill her."

On appeal, the Supreme Court granted Lemaster a new trial due to the trial court's refusal to strike a biased juror during jury selection.

In a 6-1 decision, the court ruled that Judge John David Preston should have excused from the jury pool a juror who it said would have been prejudiced against Lemaster. On appeal, Lemaster argued, among other things, that the judge erred when he failed to strike two jurors from the jury pool, forcing his attorney to use his peremptory challenges to remove them.

In its decision, the Supreme Court specifically addressed one juror who Lemaster claimed "should have been stricken for cause after she expressed an inability to find Appellant not guilty unless he presented evidence demonstrating his innocence."

"Having extensively reviewed the exchange with the juror, we agree that (the juror) should have been stricken when she repeatedly demonstrated her inability to afford the Appellant his protections" under the U.S. and state constitutions, the Supreme Court said.

PAINTSVILLE — A Johnson County man was arrested and 23 stolen firearms were recovered within 24 hours from the time a burglary was reported to the Johnson County Sheriff's Office.

Joshua Amburgey, 18, of Paintsville, is charged with receiving stolen property.

A press release issued by the Johnson County Sheriff's Office said Deputy David Pridemore responded to a call of a burglary Jan. 17 in the East Point community, where there were several items reported missing, including a variety of firearms for which the owner had maintained a record of the serial numbers.

Through his investigation, Pridemore was able to locate one of the firearms at a Prestonsburg pawn shop, another at a Paintsville pawn shop, and the remainder of the BLAINE — Three Lawrence County residents were arrested last Wednesday in connection with alleged "doctor shopping" in three states.

Crystal Dalton, 28, Anthony Childers, 35, and Zandol Parrigan, 41, all of Louisa, are charged with possession of Oxycodone and drug paraphernalia, and trafficking in a controlled substance.

According to a press release issued by the Lawrence County Sheriff's Office, deputy Mason Keefer conducted a routine traffic stop in the area of the Left Fork of Little Blaine, where the group's vehicle was stopped for a moving violation.

Once the vehicle was stopped, one of the occupants appeared to be attempting to conceal something in the interior of the car, the release said. A consent to search the vehicle was obtained, at which time Keefer located containers with Oxycodone and other pills inside them, according to the release.

Keefer also found drug paraphernalia, needles and cash while executing the search, the release said. During the course of the investigation, Keefer found papers indicating that Dalton, Childers and Parrigan were fraudulently obtaining pills from Georgia, Tennessee and Texas, the release said.

Dalton, Childers and Parrigan were taken into custody and transported to the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center in Johnson County.

The Lawrence County Sheriff's Office is conducting an investigation into the trio doctor shopping, the release said.

LAWRENCE COUNTY SHERIFF'S deputy Mason Keefer arrested three people Jan. 16 and confiscated various containers of pills, drug paraphernalia, needles and cash as well as documentation indicating the trio had apparently been involved in doctor shopping.

weapons were found at a residence at Hager Hill.

"There were also hunting knives, pocket knives and some jewelry stolen," Pridemore said Tuesday. "We were able to recover the knives as well, but we haven't located the jewelry yet."

Pridemore explained how Amburgey allegedly had been able to take the items.

"The owner met Amburgey in church, and they felt sorry for him because he said he had been kicked out and that he had no where to go, so they allowed him to stay at their house," Pridemore said. "The owner went out of town to Paducah and left him there, and when they returned, he had cleaned them out."

Pridemore said the owner kept records of the firearms' serial numbers, and that information was crucial in recovering them.

"There were two firearms found in area pawn shops and the rest were at a residence at Hager Hill," Pridemore said.

A gun collector had purchased the rest of the guns and the knives from Amburgey, according to Pridemore.

"He paid $2,400 for all of it and they were all name-brand guns, Colt, Smith & Wesson, Brownings, etc. We picked them up on January 18, but we've still not found the jewelry."

Amburgey was taken into custody and transported to the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center in Johnson County.

The incident is under investigation, and anyone with information regarding the missing jewelry can contact the Johnson County Sheriff's Office at (606) 789-3411.

The Johnson County Sheriff's Office recommended in the press release that owners of firearms keep their serial numbers, photographs and any other relevant information regarding their valuables in a safe location where it can be accessed in the event they are stolen.

8 a.m. until 5 p.m. for at least two days, depending on the weather, to drill multiple rows of railroad steel to repair the embankment and pavement failure. In the interest of safety, it will be necessary to close the road to all vehicles while the interior rows of steel, the ones closest to the centerline, are set in place, according to press release from Highway District 12.

Moore said that repairs will take several weeks, but the road will be completely closed only during the first few days.

"We will accommodate school buses and emergency vehicles," he explained, "but other drivers should take a different route at least on Tuesday and Wednesday from the 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. time slot. After that, assuming the weather cooperates, we should be able to go back to using the temporary traffic signal while the outside rows of steel are drilled."

Moore cautioned drivers, as always, to slow down in the work zone area.

"We ask people to be patient, pay attention, and put away anything that might be distracting, buckle up, and be as safe as you know how to be," he said. "It takes all of us doing our part to keep each of us safe on our highways."

Martin County's figure includes both oil and natural gas production, according to McNeill.

Henderson and Union counties were the largest producer counties outside Kentucky's Appalachian Basin region.

Johnson County's gross natural gas production value was $3,271,373.65, while Lawrence County's was $2,734,443.29. Figures for oil production were not reported due to confidentiality statutes.

"Kentucky's oil and natural gas producers support local economies and provide good jobs to hard working Kentuckians," said KOGA president

Thirty-four counties reported active natural gas production in 2012 while sixty counties reported oil production.

Kentucky has over 44,800 active wells, of which, 25,500 are oil wells and 19,300 are natural gas wells. Nationally, Kentucky ranks 22nd in oil production and 18th in natural gas production

Pretrial hearing for ex-deputy clerks reset

by Lilly Adkins
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

INEZ — A pretrial conference has been rescheduled for February for two former employees in the Martin County Clerk's Office charged in connection with money missing from the office.

Ex-deputy clerks Tamberlyn Hairston, 41, and her sister, Tonya Mills, 47, both of Lovely, pleaded not guilty pleas in December and were originally scheduled to appear for their pretrial conference last Thursday. Attorneys were appointed for both Hairston and Mills at Thursday's court appearance and the date of the pretrial conference was rescheduled to Feb. 7.

Hairston and Mills were indicted in December 2012 on charges of abuse of public trust shortly after State Auditor Adam Edelen released the findings of an audit of the clerk's 2011 financial statement and found a number of problems, not only with the 2011 financial statement but also in a review of the 2012 accounts in which more than $16,000 in undeposited cash receipts were discovered.

Mills is charged with abuse of public trust over $10,000, while Hairston is charged with abuse of public trust under $10,000 and four counts of second-degree criminal possession of a forged instrument.

Mills and Hairston were fired from their job by their mother last August after funds were reportedly found missing from the office.

After being indicted, both Mills and Hairston turned themselves in at the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center and were released on their own recognizance. Mills was arrested again on Jan. 10 on unrelated charges.

In that case, Mills is charged with second-offense operating on suspended or revoked operator's license within five years, excessive windshield/window tinting, license plate not legible, obstructed vision and or windshield, no registration plate, giving an officer a false name or address and operating on a suspended or revoked operator's license.

Mills is currently incarcerated at the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center in lieu of a $10,000 cash bond.

Hairston remains free on the same bond.

How to delete yourself from the Internet

by Kim Komando

Kim Komando hosts the nation's largest talk radio show about consumer electronics, computers and the Internet.

Are there days when you wish you could just disappear from the Internet?

Maybe you're haunted by things you've said on social networks, or you're just sick of having companies track and catalog your every digital move.

Yeah, it'd be nice to pull the plug on the whole thing, but it would be easier to stop a runaway train, right?

Actually, it's not terribly difficult to pull the Internet equivalent of escaping to a deserted island. All it takes is time and tenacity.

A good place to start is with a Google search of your name to see if anything unsavory pops up. Remember that Google isn't your enemy; it's just the messenger. If you want to remove some embarrassing things you've said in a forum - or bad things that have been said about you somewhere - you need to get it removed from the original source.

Find an email address or phone number for the website in question and talk to a person who has the authority to grant your takedown request. Most websites have a Contact Us link at the bottom of their home pages.

If you can't find contact information, a "Who Is" Google search will tell you who registered the site. Type "whois www.name-of-site.com" in quotes.

Website operators are under no obligation to remove content unless they get a court order. But most will give you a fair hearing if you're polite and explain that the content is untrue, hurts your reputation or is making it hard for you to get a job.

If it's a site's policy to not remove content, ask whether your name can be removed from the post or whether the content can be blocked from appearing in search engines.

If you succeed at changing a site, it can take Google a while to show updated search results. Fortunately, you can speed up the process using Google's URL Removal Tool. You need to have a Google account to make the request.

Google isn't the only information collector around. Anybody who's willing to pay online information brokers - also known as people-search sites - can learn your phone number, address, criminal record and a lot more.

Primary data brokers like Intelius collect information from public records. Secondary data brokers like Spokeo aggregate information from primary brokers and add data collected from social networks and other online sources.

If you truly want to disappear from the Internet, you should search for yourself on these sites and remove yourself from their databases.

The privacy company Abine maintains a list of 25 major data vendors and instructions for opting out of each one. Click here to view it.

Each site's opt-out procedure is different. Some even require letters and faxes. But it's the same routine that Abine's data-removal specialists follow if you sign up for the company's Delete Me subscription service. It just takes a bit more time.

Don't let your guard down after you opt out. Keep searching for yourself on people-finder sites

Dr. Frazier to speak at symposium

LOUISA — Dr. Thomas H. Frazier, a gastroenterologist at Three Rivers Medical Center, will serve as a featured speaker at the Debbie Waiz Endoscopy Symposium.

The regional meeting, held in Louisville, gathers leaders in the field of endoscopy to discuss current and emerging diagnostic and therapeutic techniques for endoscopy and their application in the health-care setting.

Frazier will address fecal transplantation, including cases where this treatment modality may be appropriate, discuss the indications for this approach and review the risks and benefits. Fecal transplant is a relatively new and promising approach in the treatment of recurrent/resistant Clostridium difficile infections.

"Three Rivers Medical Center is proud to have talented physicians at the leading edge of their respective fields, right here at home," says Greg Kiser, CEO. "Our physicians are regularly tapped for their expertise in a specific practice area or innovative new treatment approaches, to share best practices and help contribute to better patient care. At the same time, our own physicians can network with peers and learn new approaches and solutions that they can bring back and implement here, in their home community."

Frazier has served as a staff physician/gastroenterologist at Three Rivers Medical Center since July 2011. In addition to treating liver disorders such as hepatitis C and performing endoscopic procedures such as a colonoscopy, Frazier's specialty areas include enteral stenting and ERCP. His research focuses on nutrition and obesity and nutrition for the critically ill obese patient. His work in the area of obesity-induced inflammation has led to the development of a tube feeding formula designed for critically ill obese patients. He is also performing capsule endoscopy in the office as a way of investigating diseases of the small intestine.

In addition to his local practice, Frazier also serves as assistant clinical professor of medicine at the University of Louisville for the Department of Gastroenterology, Hepatology and Nutrition; and adjunct professor of internal medicine and gastroenterology at the University of Pikeville College of Osteopathic Medicine. He is board certified in internal medicine and gastroenterology and is a member of the American Society of Gastrointestinal Endoscopy, American Association for the Study of Liver Disease and the American Society for Parenteral and Enteral Nutrition.

BSCTC creates Speaker Bureau

PRESTONSBURG — Looking for a public speaker for your class, group or club? Big Sandy Community and Technical College has the resource you need.

The college has created a Speakers Bureau, which is made up of a variety of employees who offer presentations on computers, classroom management, math and nursing. If you're not looking for something quite so academic, the bureau also offers presentations on self-defense, health and wellness, global awareness, goal-setting, career planning, verbal defense, and conflict resolution. The best news is that these presentations are offered as a community service and are free of charge.

If you would like to visit the Speakers Bureau Web site, go to www.bigsandy.kctcs.edu, click on the "Visitors and Community" tab, and then select "Speakers Bureau." There you will find a complete listing of speakers and topics, along with email contact links to the speakers if you choose to book a presentation.

If you have any questions about the Speakers Bureau or experience any difficulties navigating the Bureau's website, contact the program coordinators via e-mail at bs-speaker-bureau@kctcs.edu.
